The people of Barre and Montpelier are beginning to appreciate the beauties in nature near home, contrary to the saying that we pass by the beautiful things close at hand without notice. Yesterday afternoon there was a continuous stream of visitors at pretty Benjamin Falls whereas a few years ago this attractive spot was scarcely noticed, while people would go many hundreds of miles to find another as charming. The water in the brook was high and tumbled from the reservoir to the base of the cliff in one seething mass of foam, and indeed made an attractive picture.

It is hoped the band will continue giving concerts through the season as all enjoy them very much and with as good material for a band as Williamstown has it seems a pity not to hear from them occasionally through the summer.
